SMALL TALK

PICKING PATTERN

G

Cadd9

Her gaze is fixed upon mine, looking for something lost to time

G

Cadd9

All I know is how I feel right now, that aint good enough...

The picking pattern above is a suggestion for how to approach this song.

The green blob is your thumb and the blue your index finger.

Keep in mind that your picking pattern should still remain fairly loose and free. You want to keep a bouncy rhythm as you alternate over to the strumming pattern.

SMALL TALK

(Intro and verses alternate picked and hammer on and pull offs – chorus and breakdown Strummed)

Standard tuning

Intro – [G Cadd9 x2]

Verse – [G Cadd9 x4]

Her gaze is fixed upon mine

Looking for something lost to Gme

All I know is how I feel right now

That just ain't good enough, somehow

Chorus – [Cadd9 progression (Cadd9, remove 2nd fret finger and move to 5th fret, remove 5th fret finger and move to 7th fret, move back to 5th fret. Repeat)] x2

She said;

Find yourself some trusty chords

Take these hollow words back home

Just find something to say

Verse – [G Cadd9 x4]

Would it be easier to forget

Spend my day living in regret

Nothing seems right, right now

That just ain't good enough, somehow

SMALL TALK

Chorus – [Cadd9 progression (Cadd9, remove 2nd fret finger and move to 5th fret, remove 5th fret finger and move to 7th fret, move back to 5th fret. Repeat)] x2

She said;

Find yourself some trusty chords

Take those lengthy words back home

Just find something to say

Breakdown – [D Em9 Cadd9, D Em9 Cadd9 G]

But I don't need no small talk

I ain't got, I ain't got Gme for small talk

And I can't stand no small talk

Especially not today

Double Chorus – [Cadd9 progression (Cadd9, remove 2nd fret finger and move to 5th fret, remove 5th fret finger and move to 7th fret, move back to 5th fret. Repeat)] x2

She said;

Find yourself some trusty chords

Take those empty words back home

Find something to say...

Oh, find yourself, find yourself

Those trusty chords

And take your hollow words back home

Find something to say X2

Outro – [G C]
